ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

A rules definition language the authoring rules for concurrent processing. The RDL includes statements that facilitate efficient use of computer resources by allowing a rule to be broken down into one or more instructions, and processing these instructions asynchronously to provide more efficient use of the computer resources. Once processed

5   into the instructions, results thereof can be passed among the instructions to facilitate process completion of the rule.